Mapping Out the Dispute Process

Card Members can dispute a charge for lots of reasons. Whether it's because they think they were charged twice, they disagree with the amount, they don't recognize the charge on their billing statement, or they didn't receive the goods or services — this step-by-step flowchart can help make the process clearer for you, so you know what to expect the next time it happens.

A Charge is Disputed*

We'll work directly with the Card Member and try to resolve the case before reaching out to you. If more information is needed, you'll either receive an Inquiry or a Chargeback.

Inquiry

If we can't figure it out using the info we already have, we'll ask you for help.

Upfront Chargeback

If the Card Member gives enough info, we may debit your account upfront.

Once you hear from us, you'll have 20 days to respond. Be sure to send your supporting documents before the deadline.

Once you hear from us, you'll have 20 days to respond. This is your chance to send supporting documents that might reverse the Chargeback.

Case Resolved

If your reply addresses the dispute successfully and on time, there won't be a Chargeback.

Chargeback

If you don't reply in time or with the requested documentation, your account will be debited.

Reversal

If your reply addresses the dispute successfully and on time, we'll undo the Chargeback.

Chargeback Stands

If you don't reply in time or with the requested documentation, the Chargeback will stand.

*Card Members have up to 120 days from the transaction date to dispute the charge except for these disputes categories: 1. Goods/services not received. 2. Goods/services returned/canceled. 3. Redisputes. In these instances, the time frame can extend accordingly.
